

SUSPENSION OF AUTONOMY PLANS ARE RECONSIDERED

Sudetens Leaders Make Effort To Prevent Probable Irrevocable Break

BEATINGS REPORTED

Peace Discussions Suddenly Broken Off As Result of Series of Incidents

By George Langwell
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Sept. 8.—(INS)—In an effort to prevent a final and perhaps irrevocable break between the Sudeten Germans and the Prague Government, leaders of the Sudeten party today reconsidered their suspension of negotiations over the autonomy issue.

The peace discussions were suddenly broken off as a result of a series of incidents at Mährisch-Ostau, including an alleged assault by Czech police on two Sudeten deputies, who were reported beaten with riding crops.

Premier Milan Hodza informed representatives of the Sudeten party that the Czech Government would investigate the incidents thoroughly and punish any police officers found guilty of unprovoked attacks. Upon receiving these assurances, the Sudetens agreed to reconsider their stand.

What the final decision of the Sudetens will be remained in doubt at a late hour this morning. It was assumed that with Konrad Henlein, chief party leader, taking a hand in the investigation the ultimate decision might rest between him and Chancellor Adolf Hitler.

Announcement that the Sudetens had agreed to reconsider their position in the light of Hodza's promises was contained in a communique issued by the Prague Government.

This communique stated: "The Sudeten delegates informed the Premier of their decision not to continue negotiations until the incidents at Mährisch-Ostau had been liquidated."

BUGLE CORPS MUST STAND SEVERE TESTS

Score Sheets, State Competition, Show How Bristol Received Total of 95.45%

WERE HIGHLY PRAISED

Some idea of the completeness with which the judging was done at a state contest in which the junior bugle corps of Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, American Legion, was a contestant is obtained from the score sheets of that contest which was held at Scranton a few weeks ago.

The Bristol corps lost the contest by the score of 4.55, and finished the contest with a total score of 95.45. Captain L. F. Kengle, 39th Infantry, N. G. P., said this of the Bristol group: "They had plenty of color and precision. It was a real spectacle. The color guard was excellent and the girl drum major was a marvel. The corps was marvelously equipped."

In the judging the Bristol corps scored its total of 95.45 points in the following manner:

For general appearance the Corps received 9.3 out of a possible 10; cadence, 8.4; general effect, 8.2; then out of a possible 20 points the corps was awarded 19.9 for drumming; 19.9 for bugling. Out of a possible 30 points the corps was awarded 29.75 for marching and maneuvering.

Organize Republican Club At Meeting in Doylestown

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 8.—The Young Republican Club of Bucks County was organized last night in the Doylestown Inn, with R. Chapman Carver, Buckingham, elected president. Ten communities were represented at the organization meeting. Plans were completed for a united support of young Republicans in other districts for backing Arthur H. James for Governor.

Other officers elected included the following: Vice-Presidents, William J. Best, Jr., Bristol, and Frank Jackson, Sellersville; secretary, Curtis Lyons, Doylestown; treasurer, Joseph A. Cahlan, Bristol.

The meeting was addressed by Byron E. VanPelt, Upper Darby, director of region two of the Young Republicans of that county. He outlined the purposes of the county association and asked members to immediately hold meetings to organize clubs in all boroughs, townships and voting districts. The local club, he explained, will elect all their own officers. John R. Danforth, Philadelphia, also addressed the meeting. He said that every local club will have two delegates to represent the club at the meeting of the Young Republican County Committee. He said there will be six delegates selected in Bucks County to represent the committee at the State convention meeting of Young Republicans.

TONSILS OUT

Miss Florence Capella, 424 Jefferson avenue, had her tonsils removed at the Wagner private hospital, Tuesday. Marie and Anna Caruso, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Caruso, 920 Spring street, had their tonsils removed at the same hospital, Tuesday. Frank Caruso had a slight operation performed there also.

Here and There in Bucks County Towns

Mrs. Helen M. Hall is filling the vacancy caused by the resignation of Miss Constance Allen, dean of girls at George School, Newtown.

The new dean, who is a graduate of Wellesley College, holds a masters degree in education from Swarthmore College. She has had wide teaching experience, including work as assistant supervisor, Philadelphia Public School Garden and Nature Study Department, and as a teacher in Chester High School, Germantown Friends' School, and Swarthmore Public School. She was principal of West Chester Friends School from 1929 to 1931, and has just completed a three-year term as principal of Media Friends' School. Mrs. Hall's oldest son graduated at George School in 1936. He is now a student at Swarthmore College. Alan, a younger son, will be a student at George School.

The Seascouts of Morrisville have planned a large party to be held Saturday, September 17th. Members of the ship "Robert Morris" will participate, with heads of various Seascout ships in the county, some commissioners, Scouts and members of the Rotary Seascout ship committee invited.

The group will embark from the Seascout base, just below Morrisville. Refreshments are to be served.

Bucks county's highway death toll for 1938 was boosted to a total of twenty-eight as a result of Labor Day week-end accidents.

Two persons were victims of fatalities, a woman pedestrian was instantly killed, and a man is believed to have died of a heart attack at the wheel of his car.

Five other persons were injured in a total of six accidents investigated by the officers of the Doylestown, Quakertown and Oxford Valley sub-stations over the week-end.

In nearby Montgomery county there were a number of automobile crashes and two Hatfield brothers perished when a reef tipped the boat in which they were fishing in Delaware Bay opposite Bayside, N. J., on Sunday.

Automobile traffic was very heavy on the Lackawanna Trail and the Bethlehem pike on Labor Day. Lincoln Highway traffic was described as medium. No accidents, other than bumper crashes, were reported in the Langhorne section.

Sergeant William Engle, of the Doylestown sub-station of the State Motor Police, gave an interesting talk on highway safety at a well attended meeting of the Solebury Farmers' Club, entertained in Trinity Hall, Solebury, on Saturday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Vasey and Mr. and Mrs. A. Harvey Vasey.

ASSURES POSTPONEMENT OF HIGHWAY CONTRACT

Governor Earle To Confer With Some Who Object To Plans for Thoroughfare

THROUGH NEW HOPE

From Harrisburg has come assurance of Governor George H. Earle that he will hold up awarding of contracts for Lahaska-New Hope highway until he has had time to confer with organizations and persons objecting to the present plans for building the road.

This announcement was made this morning by Mrs. Martha Woolley, chairman of the Bucks County Real-estate Board committee for zoning and planning in Bucks county.

It appears that the Governor's decision was due to the activity of Mrs. Woolley and Mrs. C. C. Zantzier, president of the Council for the Preservation of Natural Beauty, who enlisted the aggressive support of a number of state and local organizations in opposition to the new plans for 202. Harrisburg was bombarded with protests as a result.

Several arguments are presented against the present plans for improving the Lahaska-New Hope section of the highway. One is that it entails too great an expense when it will not turn out to be the heavy duty highway, because New Jersey, it is claimed, will not co-operate in meeting it. It is claimed New Jersey plans building a bridge either above or below New Hope to provide for a high speed highway.

Another point of the opposition is that it would lead only to a "bottleneck" in New Hope. A third is the destruction of landmarks and fine shade.

"The fact should be impressed," said Mrs. Woolley this morning, "that the opposition is based on economic reasons. We don't believe $220,000 should be spent on four miles of road that will not achieve the purpose for which it was intended, and will do a great deal of harm."

"There is also a growing sentiment against the starting of new highway building on main roads in the Fall and Winter, when back road detours are likely to be snowed up and impassable at times."

"A serious problem left by the line proposed for the new highway is that it will leave a number of islands that are likely to plague the public seriously, because we have yet no zoning to control their use."

Sergeant Engle informed the large audience that in 1937 in Pennsylvania alone 2,700 persons had met death as the result of automobile accidents. At least 60,000 persons, he added, were injured in auto accidents.

Continuing, Sergeant Engle said: "We do not realize the seriousness of the automobile accidents unless they strike home. We should exercise caution when we drive or walk along the highways."

Members of the cabinet of the women's missionary society of Pleasantville Reformed Church met at the home of the president, Mrs. Irvin L. MacNair, to plan the work for the following year, beginning with the meeting Wednesday afternoon, September 21. That meeting will be held at the church, when Mrs. Samuel H. M. Clymer will be the program leader.

Leaders for the monthly programs were chosen as follows: October, Mrs. Norman Cornell; November, Mrs. Howard A. Clymer; December, Mrs. Hugh Johnston; January, meeting at home of Mrs. Irvin L. MacNair, Mrs. Hanna L. Johnson; February, Mrs. Irvin R. Swartley; March, Mrs. G. Sherman Perry; April, Mrs. Leroy Shutt; June, Mrs. George Cornell; July, Mrs. Frank P. McNair and August, Mrs. Abram A. Nash.

INCREASED ENROLLMENT SHOWN, BRISTOL TWP.

925 Listed On Opening Day; Increase of 92 From First Day, Last Term

379 ARE AT CROYDON

Bristol Township public schools opened yesterday with an increased enrollment. The total enrolled on the opening day is 925, or an increased enrollment of 92 over the first day of last term.

Supervising principal William J. Kines states that the active enrollment last term was 912, with a total enrollment at the end of the term of 998.

At Croydon where the largest list of students is noted, there are 379 pupils; 152 at Maple Shade; 191 at Edgely; 87 at Laurel Bend; 73 at Newportville; 20 at Badger; and 21 at Emille.

In Croydon the rooms housing the eighth grade have 27 listed; and for the fifth grade, 57.

Registration period will be continued for the next two weeks. It is stated, then after that period there will positively be no more admissions unless by transfer.

The only beginners to be admitted are those who will be six years old on or before February 1st.

Joseph Home in Langhorne Greatly Damaged By Fire

LANGHORNE, Sept. 8.—The house of Edwin A. Joseph, North Bellevue avenue, was found to be on fire, Tuesday afternoon. A few minutes after the family had left home for Trenton a neighbor noticed smoke coming from the building. An alarm was sent in to the Langhorne, South Langhorne, Hulmeville and other companies from nearby towns, who quickly responded.

The fire was soon under control but not without serious damage.

The cause of the conflagration has not been ascertained at this time.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

(Copyright, 1938, by The Baltimore Sun)

Exploitation

Washington, Sept. 7.

FEW more truly damaging things can happen to a free people than the destruction of their sense of moral values and the lowering of their political standards. That is why, to many people, the anesthetizing effect of the current political regime upon the popular capacity to flame against the unsavory actions of men in high public position is considered more really injurious to the nation as a whole than the unsound policies from which such unparalleled waste has flowed.

IT IS not pleasant to contemplate the fact that the point has been reached in American politics where a great popular leader can solemnly pledge himself to follow one course in his campaign and then, after the election, without explanation, apology, excuse or defense, go in the exactly opposite direction. And it is made not less discouraging to those who believe in the democratic system to realize that the most concrete and open promises can be broken with impunity, while the people are soothed by a pleasing radio voice and bribed with their own money.

IT isn't necessary to recite the record which justifies these statements. It has been printed many times, but with a strange lack of effect. Seven years ago such facts as have been laid bare about this Administration would have aroused real public indignation. In former days, the one incident alone of the cheap campaign book photographed at the White House and then, to replenish a political committee's treasury, peddled at fantastic prices to extremely reluctant corporations and citizens—that incident alone would have offended the public sense of decency and dealt those responsible a blow from which they would not have rallied. Caught with the goods, this unpleasant business was literally laughed off, dismissed with an airy wave of the Presidential cigarette holder, dodged without any perceptible diminution of prestige among the masses of his adherents, which fact is about as illuminating both as to them and to him as anything could be.

SO IT has been with other things. So it is with the unprecedented commercial exploitation of the White House by the occupying family and connections thereof. There is no parallel for this in the

Hitler Moves To Settle Dispute

Nuremberg, Germany, Sept. 8.—Determined to fall back on his demand for a plebiscite if everything else fails, Chancellor Hitler today moved to settle the new Sudeten autonomous dispute and launched direct conversation with Great Britain for an amicable solution.

The Fuehrer sent Konrad Henlein, Sudeten party leader, across the border to Mährisch-Ostau, scene of disorder which led Sudetens to suspend negotiations with the Czechoslovakian government.

Henlein arose from his sick bed and motored to the border town late last night. He returned to Nuremberg at 11 a. m. today. Results of his visit were not immediately known.

Assumption here was that if Hitler had his way, Sudeten indignation over the alleged manhandling of two Sudeten deputies by Czechoslovakian police at Mährisch-Ostau will die down and the Prague negotiations be resumed.

Man Falls Dead at End Of Day's Work on Road

About to lay down his tools after completing a day's work on road construction work between Newportville and Hulmeville, Thomas H. Uren, of near Eddington, suddenly fell to the ground, lifeless, late yesterday afternoon.

Death is attributed to a heart attack, and a certificate giving cause of death was issued by deputy coroner of Bucks County, Dr. James P. Lawler.

Uren had not complained of feeling ill, and had with other workmen been engaged on the reconstruction of the thoroughfare leading from Midway to Hulmeville borough. Seeing him fall his fellow workmen hurried to him, but found that life was already extinct.

The deceased was the son of the late Martin and Mary Ann Uren. He is survived by two brothers, Samuel, of Morrisville; and Herbert, of Philadelphia. The late Mr. Uren had lived in lower Bucks County for practically his entire lifetime.

The funeral service will be conducted from the Haefer funeral home, Main street, Hulmeville, Saturday at one p. m. Burial will be in Mt. Moriah Cemetery, Philadelphia, and friends may call Friday evening.

PRACTICAL INFORMATION GIVEN GRANGE MEMBERS

Lower Bucks County & Philadelphia Meets in Carversville Church

SEVERAL SPEAKERS

CARVERSVILLE, Sept. 8.—The September meeting of Lower Bucks County and Philadelphia Pomona Grange was held in the Christian Church here, yesterday, with Master Frank Magill, of Tyro Hall Grange, presiding.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by secretary, Miss Margaret Slack. Mr. Magill reported he had visited Carversville Grange, adding "they are doing good work and gaining membership."

B. Palmer Tomlinson, member of the Agricultural Committee, reported that the rubber-tired tractor is preferable for work requiring high speed, but the steel-tired one is better for low speed work. Included in information given was: "Wheat should be treated for awn moth; the Hessian fly is very bad this year. Don't sow wheat before October 15. Sow barley by September 15. Put powdered sulphur on corn to keep rats from corn storage bins. The corn borer was very bad in Lower Bucks county, especially in sweet corn. Use your corn stalks for silage or plow under and clean up all trash."

He also reported that a fire was caused in a clothes closet by hanging clothing on an electric light, and warned against hanging clothing on electric fixtures. "The wet season has caused forest poisoning; if your stock comes gorged, keep them from drinking water. Black locust foliage is poisonous."

Mrs. Mae Newbold, of the Home Economics Committee, gave several practical menus for meals, suppers for a hot night, a company supper in winter, and Christmas dinner.

She urged farm wives to lighten their work. One especially fine help is paper towels. Use them when cooking and preserving, and put a supply where the threshers can use them while washing before meals as this saves so much laundering and the cost is slight.

Mrs. Wagner, Carversville Grange, reported that Carversville had held a corn and bake show last year and would have one this year. She also gave several household short-cuts.

A recess was called during which a delicious luncheon was served.

Delaware Valley Grange, which is located in Fallsington, had a display of crochet, cross-stitch and embroidery.

The lecturer's hour was under the direction of Mrs. Walker Jackson. Singing of "To The Beloved Grange" by Elizabeth Hayward Garner, followed. Dedicated to National Master, Louis J. Taber. Mrs. Jackson gave a report of the recent interstate conference for lecturers held in Ithaca, N. Y. She said she felt Pennsylvania State Lecturer, Mrs. Isaac Gross, was one of the outstanding personalities of the conference. She reported that Dr. Earl Bates, of Cornell University, said each Pomona lecturer needs to have a "Silent Hour." "Take time to study each grange, their needs, desires and ability."

Louis J. Taber, in his message, said: "We must pass the grange on to our juveniles with as high standards as it had when we inherited it. We must watch the forces threatening America from within—inertia, indifference. This is too serious a time for denunciation. Remember the explorers who came to North America came seeking God, whereas the explorers to South America were seeking gold."

"We must remember the sacrifices our forefathers made, guard against mental laziness, keep the American market for the American farmer as far as he has ability to fulfill it."

Mrs. Miller had written to Mr. Eastman, editor of the "American Agriculturist," objecting to an advertisement in his paper with a picture of a woman smoking, and after discussing the matter, the advertisement was discontinued.

JUDGE BOYER TELLS DEFENDANT HE CAN'T BEND WIFE TO WILL

Clarence Wilson, 20, Native of Kentucky, Pleads Guilty To Assault and Battery

TO SPEND 30 DAYS IN JAIL

Is Employed As Greenskeeper At the Yardley Country Club

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 8.—Judge Calvin S. Boyer in Bucks county court yesterday told a greenskeeper employed at the Yardley Country Club that he did not believe that it was a Kentucky idea or law in that State "that a man can bend his wife to his will."

Clarence Wilson, 20, a native of Kentucky, was in court pleading guilty to assault and battery alleged to have been committed on his wife, at their Yardley apartment.

"No man has a right to beat up his wife no matter how much she needs it, how much she may profit by it or how nearly she provokes her husband into beating her," declared Judge Boyer at the hearing.

Wilson was sentenced to pay the costs of prosecution and serve not less than 30 days or more than one year in the Bucks County Prison.

The Yardley greenskeeper admitted choking his wife until a neighbor in an apartment below called the police. Wilson said that he was cooking his own supper when the argument started.

"My wife refused to cook my supper," Wilson told Judge Boyer. "Like a man has a way of doing, the kitchen was a mess while I was cooking. My wife came in and grabbed my supper, and I was only trying to put her out of the kitchen."

Wilson stated that he had been married about six months and that his wife, who was not in court, was 17. He admitted that he may have had his fingers about his wife's throat or neck, but he said he "couldn't quite remember details."

Wilson denied that he told the Yardley police that in Kentucky when you marry a woman you bend her to your will.

Mrs. Grace Hallmark, Yardley neighbor of the Wilsons, testified that she called the police because she heard the argument. She said that when Wilson saw her calling the police that Wilson then remarked, "Well, I'll do this thing right, and kill her." Mrs. Hallmark said that it was the second beating that she had witnessed at the Wilsons.

In the meantime Mrs. Wilson has returned to her home in the South.

"You are getting a mild sentence because your wife did not choose to appear here," the court remarked.

Pleading guilty to obtaining money under false pretense, Charles Ruppert, of Kempton, Berks county, was sentenced by Judge Boyer to serve from three months to three years in the Bucks County Prison.

Alexander Martin, 29, Bethlehem R. D. 4, pleaded guilty to driving while drunk, which included a collision with a stone wall and two automobiles, was sentenced by Judge Boyer to pay the costs and a fine of $200, after Assistant District Attorney Willard S. Curtin presented releases from three Springtown people who were damaged. A sister of the defendant paid the damages.

Linwood M. Scholl, Jr., Lansdale, pleaded guilty before Judge Boyer to a charge of driving a car after his operating privilege had been revoked. He was sentenced to pay the costs and serve from one month to two years in the Bucks County Prison.

Co-Workers Honor Young Women at Kitchen Shower

Employees of Sol Freeman and Sons, Inc., Radcliffe street, gave a surprise shower in honor of Miss Congetta Peterpaul, Wednesday afternoon. The party was held in the office, and Miss Peterpaul was presented with kitchen utensils and a clothes-hamper. About 65 attended.

THE CLASS OF 1950

"Meet the Class of 1950."

It is a sole thought. Many a mother feels the silence of the home oppressive after the sound of little feet on the schoolward way has ceased. Memories force tears when momentous changes come to the home.

Yesterday, "babies"; today, pupils! What dignity is added, what transformation is worked by the addition of primer and copybook. Tomorrow, scholars! There are vast possibilities in that word. In 1950, graduates. And then, what?

What possibilities are among them? One may later be President of the United States of America. Among them may be governors and legislators. Among them may be genius that will transform the whole vast industrial system of the nation, perhaps of the world. One might by a single invention change the whole course of the world's industrial history and lift the plane of living of humanity so far above that of our time as to make this age seem primitive.

And some may fail. Some by the bad example of elders, the error in judgment of a teacher, the faulty moral safeguards of society, may go wrong and learn the ways of crime.

Twelve years will roll by before graduation day of 1950. Three Presidents may direct the affairs of the nation from the White House. Vast changes in policy may affect the prospects of the graduates of 1950. What the world has in store for them is the responsibility of the citizenry of today and of those coming 12 years. To be instructed with a commission to get a world ready to receive those innocents should make the men and women of today thoughtful.

THE HIGHEST TAX RATE

Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia reports industrial production was lower in July than in June and lower in June than in May by one point each month. Over the first seven months of 1938 the average rate of productive activity showed a decline of 28 per cent from a year earlier.

The Federal Reserve Board reports that in the seven weeks ended August 25 business recovered all the ground lost in the last seven months for the nation as a whole.

Pennsylvania has the highest tax on manufacturing of any state.

UNEMPLOYMENT TOTALS

Growth of Manufacturing Areas published by Bureau of Business Research University of Pittsburgh shows that in the period from 1870 to 1930 the average increase in gainful workers in Pennsylvania was about 500,000 for each decade.

Today Pennsylvania has 25 per cent more unemployment than the average for the U. S.

Miss Dorothy Newman, Wilmington, Del.; and Mrs. George O. Walton, Hulmeville, were recent guests of Mrs. Harry C. Knotts.

Mrs. Harry Rice and daughter left on Tuesday for Cleveland, O., where they will spend a month with Mrs. Rice's sister.

Arthur S. Walker has returned to his duties at the Peoples National Bank after spending a week with his family in Ocean City, N. J., where they have been sojourning for some time.

The Epworth League will begin meetings next Sunday evening, September 11th, when an interesting program will be presented.

Practical Information Given Grange Members

continued at a loss to the paper of $10,000.

Mrs. Howard Sickle read a poem, "Today," this being followed by singing, "Will You Reap?"

Henry C. Pickett spoke on "The Development of Labor Saving Devices on the Farm." The general purpose tractor, equipped with all devices which mow, plow, harrow, cultivate, load hay, etc., is of great value, although there are some types of work which still require horses," he informed. "There is a combine, which heads and threshes grain, and the price has become such it is in the reach of the average farmer."

"The machine which dusts corn to protect the silk from the Japanese beetle is the most remarkable."

"The electric milk cooler and the airplane for spraying crops are also great improvements."

Development of Home Equipment was spoken of by a member of Delaware Valley Grange. "The main thing seems to be electricity. Electric lighting of the home, electric pump, washer, iron, refrigerator, vacuum, and dish washer; also the convenience of the oil burner to heat the home." The pleasure received from a radio in the kitchen was also discussed.

Development in conservation of soil, wild life and forests by Alvin Tomlinson, Palmer Tomlinson, Margaret R. Slack, Mrs. Joseph C. Winder and Horace Smith, took place.

Regarding soil it was said: "Contour farming and strip farming, a planting of crops, a strip of soil, another planting of crops keeps rain from making inroads of the soil and washing soil out and losing top soil value."

"If a ditch has already been washed, fill it in with burlap, corn stalks or brush; this will catch and hold soil. Plant long-rooted grasses to keep soil from being washed away again. Lime pastures every year, your stock will become stronger from eating that pasture."

"Do not burn over soil as it destroys humus, unless to destroy poison ivy roots."

"Trees—Plant trees to conserve water supply and prevent soil erosion. They also make preserves for bird and animal life. White pine, catalpa, locust are suitable. Trees will grow in acid soil. Oak trees make an acid soil."

"Reptiles—Do not kill snakes. They are so valuable as destroyers of field mice and moles. Kill only a copperhead, a snake with a triangular head. Do not kill the black snake or a milk snake, which can be distinguished by its red, black and white markings."

"Methods of Using Leisure Time," was the subject of Mrs. Burgess, of Edgewood Grange. "We need leaders to plan recreation. In Edgewood we use the Community House and play shuffle board, ping-pong, Chinese checkers, badminton and so forth. We then serve fruit punch and cookies. We feel this is much more preferable than frequent attending of movies. Hobby clubs also have been found useful."

A roll call, "One New Thing I Have Learned This Year," brought out several ideas.

The Rev. Kulp presented a Bible to Pomona from Florence Dyer, in memory of her late husband, Lester Dyer. Guests from Richland Grange invited all grange members to their Pomona to be held at Richland Grange Hall the third Saturday in November.

The Great Game of Politics

history of the country. So far as anyone can recall there has been nothing like it in any country. In the same situation, the Prime Minister of England would be swept out of power overnight. It is not only a violation of the most rudimentary good taste, but is indefensible from any ethical standpoint. It has, in fact, been condemned years ago—by the very man who now permits it to be done—and without whose sanction and consent it could not be done.

PUTTING aside other members of the family, take the case of James Roosevelt, the eldest son, now secretary to the President, general co-ordinator of departments and a very great power in the Administration. Whether James Roosevelt, as alleged by Alva Johnson in the Saturday Evening Post, has had an insurance income as high as $250,000, or whether as Mr. Roosevelt's income-tax returns indicate, his insurance profits ran around $40,000 a year—the fact remains that since his father was elected President he has made a phenomenal income as a insurance man. (In 1934, when it reached $40,000, he was only 27 years old.) The further fact remains that he continues to derive a large income from this source. The further fact remains that he would not have achieved any such income (taking his own figures) but for his White House connection. The further fact remains that, while he had little money of his own in 1932, when in 1940 the family leaves the White House, James will go out a fairly wealthy young man. No amount of squirming or breast-beating or calling people liars can alter those facts. They are incontestable.

—O—
YET, such is the public indifference after six years of Federal largess and radio crooning, that there is no real reaction to a state of affairs that in any other Administration would have amounted to a national scandal. It has hurt some, of course, but not to the normal extent. Perhaps some day the capacity for discriminating wrath may be recovered by the people. At the moment, however, it seems that so long as the money holds out and the "greedy rich" can be used as targets, nothing will very greatly damage Mr. Roosevelt with the great bulk of his supporters. The worst thing about the whole mess is that what has been happening in the last five years apparently has purged the public mind of a principle which here and in England has been regarded as essential to the successful functioning of our kind of government—to wit, that while a man should not be required to improve-ish himself in holding high public office, he must not grow richer while in office. It is still so regarded in England.

"The ELEVEN OF DIAMONDS"

by BAYNARD H. KENDRICK

SYNOPSIS

Edward Fowler, a wealthy gambler, is murdered at the Sunset Bridge Club in Miami. His body, with a knife in the back, is found in the poker room. Fowler had played bridge that evening with Millie La France, a seductive blond; Ben Eckhardt and Dave Butta, but quit the game when Millie accused him of throwing it. He paid the owner, Toby Munroe, for his and Millie's losses and ostensibly left, only to be found dead in an adjoining room early the next morning. A mysterious prowler discovered the body, following which the police received an anonymous phone call informing them of the crime. Two weeks previous, Fowler had searched the hotel suite of the Durlin Bessingers. Bessinger claimed to be a wealthy grain merchant but Fowler believed this only a blind as letters found in a trunk relating to his grain business were evidently written by Bessinger to himself. The Bessingers were at the club the night Fowler died. Bruce Farraday, the millionaire, enlisted the services of private detective, Miles Standish Rice, to help clear up the murder because his son, Talliver, is involved. The boy's trunk check to Fowler for the sum of ten thousand dollars was found in the latter's room. Farraday, Sr., tells LeRoy and Stan that his party, consisting of his daughter Eve, Talliver, and Mrs. Staunton (a friend) had left the club about 1 A.M. (two hours after Fowler left) and gone to the Alligator Inn with a Commander Eric Dawson, whom he had just met, and the Bessingers. Glen Neal, the society reporter, was also in the party.

CHAPTER VIII

"Neal's car is in the garage, Stan," LeRoy said. "He took a taxi to the club last night."

"What about the Commander? Did you check on him?"

"He has a car, but he lives not ten minutes walk from the Sunset. He often walks back and forth according to Toby."

"We dropped him at his apartment on the way home last night, Mr. Rice. We left the Alligator Inn about three. The others were still there."

Stan was about to apply a match to a fresh cigarette. He let it burn close to his fingers before he asked: "What others?"

"The blonde and the two men who were playing at the third table. They must have followed us from the Sunset to the Alligator Inn. They came into the Inn not five minutes after we did. They were there when we left, as I said."

Stan turned to the Captain. "Did you know that, Vince?"

"Sure," said LeRoy. "A ten person alibi for everyone who was at the club—except Toby and his spick servant, Juan. It makes it just ducky. I'll eat my shirt."

"You better soak it in orange juice," Stan advised. "You're going to say that none of that crowd could have given the works to the big-hearted gambler, who tore up the big grand checks. I'm not so sure, Vince, not so sure—and damn it all, you're not so sure yourself!"

A bridge club, in the morning, is a place shrouded in dead hopes. The air carries pungent stiffs odors, lingering heavily from consumed cigars and cigarettes, mixing offensively with the fusty dregs of alcohol and coffee left from the night before. Added to the odors is the strange feeling that about players are still present. A spectral tenacity occupies the vacant tables, softly slouching invisible cards from invisible decks, holding ghostly post-mortems on long dead hands.

Entertained by Mrs. Thomas Corrigan on Sunday were the following: Mr. and Mrs. Neal Sullivan, Edward Corrigan, Neshaminy Falls; and Miss Katherine Riley, Philadelphia. James Riley, Philadelphia, week-ended at the Corrigan home. Miss Rose Corrigan, who has been a visitor of her mother for the past week, has returned to the city.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Hall, Columbus, N. J., paid a visit on Friday to their relatives, Mr. and Mrs. William Valentine.

Two days were spent in Baltimore, Md., by Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Foster, where they visited their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Foster. Mrs. Elizabeth Mehler, Philadelphia, passed the weekend and holiday at the Foster home, here.

Mrs. Anna Fisher enjoyed a few days last week at the homes of relatives and friends in Philadelphia.

CROYDON

Mr. and Mrs. S. Paul and children motored from Clementon, N. J., and spent Monday with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Seddon.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schweiker entertained over Labor Day the Misses Lillie and Lena Vogel, Miss Kathrine Schweiker and Elwood Britton, Philadelphia. On Tuesday a pleasant surprise was given Mrs. Schweiker who celebrated her birthday. A party of friends from Philadelphia and Croydon spent a most delightful evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Kogel, Wissinoming, have again taken up residence on Wyoming avenue.

George Cornwell arrived home from the hospital and is now recuperating. Mr. and Mrs. G. Mehelek enjoyed the holidays in Virginia with Mrs. Mehelek's father.

You'll learn the puzzling power of Courier classifieds if you but give them a chance. Phone 346 today.

The casual visitor is apt to find himself listening for a whispered opening bid.

There were equally dead hopes in Satsuma Park. The white stucco house, quartering the Sunset Bridge Club, occupied four of the thirty-six, fifty by a hundred and fifty foot, lots. It had been built for a show place ten years before, when Toby Munroe was sure that Satsuma Park would make him a millionaire. In 1936 the millions, to come from his sub-divided orange grove, looked far away. The lots, with the exception of those immediately surrounding the house, had gone native.

The police car, carrying Miles Standish Rice and Captain Vincent LeRoy from their interview with Bruce Farraday, nearly missed the left turn from West Flagler Street into the subdivision.

"It looks like jungle," Stan remarked. "Jungle with ornate electric light posts bordering a trail. Do these street lights light?"

"Sure," The Captain smiled. "When they have bulbs in them. This isn't far out. Some of the boys subdivided so far west during the boom they didn't know whether their lots were in Miami or Tampa."

An officer on the front porch recognized LeRoy's car and snapped to attention. A press car was parked in the driveway. To the left a man was packing away a Graflex camera. He waved to LeRoy as Stan and the Captain went inside.

The door from the front porch opened directly into a combined hall and living-room. It was furnished with a settee, a small table containing magazines, two easy chairs, and four bridge tables reserved for small status players. The former dining-room, through an arch toward the rear of the house, had been converted into an office. Beyond the office, to the right, was a room originally built for a kitchen. It was used, now, as a storeroom for cards and stationery.

From the office came the soft click of a portable noiseless typewriter. Otherwise, the house was quiet. Only the smells, and the presence of the officer on the porch, served as reminders of the grim game which had taken place the night before. Stan and LeRoy went on into the office.

Toby Munroe was seated at a small mahogany desk, laboriously copying figures from a book to a piece of paper inserted in the machine. He shoved the typewriter to one side, and leaned back wearily in his chair when the two men entered.

"Hello, Rice. You in this, too? I've had every cop in the country here now except J. Edgar Hoover. Make yourself at home. You'll find my fingerprints on the typewriter keys. I forgot my gloves."

There was a note of desperation underlying Toby's greeting. Stan Rice, habitually sensitive to another's troubles, had real sympathy in his short, "Tough break, Toby!" "Tough?" Toby quivered from one to the other through his fashionable rimless glasses. "It's going to close me up—that's all. I've spent five years, and every damn nickel I had trying to build up a decent club. I'm just beginning to get some of the social register coming here when somebody picks the place for a slaughterhouse."

"It'll be forgotten by next season," Toby said LeRoy.

"There's a month of this season still left. With no business I can't take it. The papers won't let them forget next year, either. If there's one thing this club doesn't need it's a reputation as a hangout for henchmen."

He pushed back his chair, and came around from behind the desk with the quick fluid alacrity of a ferret. Stan had met him only twice before. He remembered that both times he had been impressed with the flowing ease of Toby's movements. He stored the fact away in his mind for use in the future if needed.

"Do you want to look around downstairs?" The Captain asked Stan.

"There's not much use looking around any place—after you fellows get through with it," Stan grinned. "I just want to get an idea of the layout on the second floor." He turned to Toby, who was waiting expectantly in the archway. "Do you mind?"

"What difference does it make, if I do? Come on up. You won't disturb anybody. The bathrooms are up there and you can take a look under the tubs. Maybe there's another body."

The stairs to the second floor were to the right of the front door. They went up straight, half-way, then turned abruptly about-face on a small landing. The upper half was completely walled in, invisible from the lower half, so that anyone descending could not be seen from the ground floor until they had made the turn on the landing.

Toby, leading the way, stopped on the landing and stepped to one side. Juan Andres, the steward, was coming down, carrying a metal waste basket, partly filled.

"Just a minute," LeRoy barred the way. "What's in that basket? I said nothing was to be touched in here until I gave permission."

Juan's dark handsome face remained passive, but he darted a quick frightened look at Toby, and asked a question in Spanish. The proprietor spoke for him.

"I told him to empty the ashtrays, and throw away the old scores. Your men have been over everything."

Stan glanced in the basket. "Let it go, Vince. There's nothing there I want to mess with."

The Captain shrugged, resignedly. He had known Stan Rice for years; watched him work as Investigator for the State's Attorney; seen him plow doggedly through the tireless details of private cases. He had never learned what Stan was going to do, nor exactly what Stan wanted to see. Sometimes the lanky, yellow-haired six-footer was frantic because some trivial thing had been thrown away. When the Captain took pains to preserve everything, the chances were Stan wanted to see none of it.

Stan's method had irritated the Captain more than once. Vincent LeRoy had reached his position in charge of the homicide squad by hard work, unflinching integrity, and a hair fer observing every detail of every case. He was a brainy officer in a well organized police department which had to cope with more than his share of organized crime. Inconsistency made him uncomfortable, and Miles Standish Rice, at work, was capricious as a ballet dancer with corns.

Stan felt immediately that LeRoy was disgruntled about allowing the contents of the waste basket to pass unchallenged.

"I told you, Vince, I just wanted to look around to get a clear picture of the set-up here," he explained, soothingly, as they continued up the stairs.

RECIPES

Turnip Puff

Mix 2 cups mashed yellow turnips with 1 cup mashed potatoes. Season to taste with a little sugar, salt, pepper and butter. Add 2 beaten egg yolks; beat until fluffy. Fold in 2 stiffly beaten egg whites. Put in mounds on a greased baking sheet. Bake in a moderate oven until brown.

Sweet-Potato Balls

2 cups mashed sweet potatoes
1 egg
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon cloves
few gratings nutmeg
3/4 cup crushed corn flakes
8 marshmallows
Beat the egg slightly and add with the spices and salt to the mashed potato. Dust the hands with flour and form the mixture into balls, concealing the marshmallows in the balls. Roll in corn flakes and fry in deep fat.

Lentils and Pork

1/2 pound salt pork
1 1/2 cups lentils
1 1/2 cups pork broth
1 onion
2 tablespoons molasses
1/2 teaspoon mustard
1/2 teaspoon salt
Soak the lentils overnight in 4 cups water and drain. Cut the pork into slices and cook it in 1 pint of water for 15 minutes. To the pork broth add the molasses, salt and mustard. Place a slice of pork and the onion in the bottom of the bean pot, cover with the lentils and then another piece of onion and pork. Continue until all the onions are used, saving a piece of pork for the top. Pour the seasoned liquid over the lentils. Cover and cook slowly until the lentils are tender, about 1 1/2 hours. If the lentils become too dry add a small quantity of boiling water from time to time.

Carrot Fritters

1/2 cup flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/3 cup milk
1 egg
1/2 tablespoon cooking oil
Cooked carrots
Sift the flour and salt together, add the milk to the beaten egg, and gradually add the liquid to the dry ingredients. Then add the cooking oil and beat thoroughly. Slice the carrots crosswise in 3/4 inch slices. Dip the slices into the batter and fry in deep hot fat or cooking oil for about 5 minutes until a delicate brown. Carrot or parsnip fritters prepared in the same way are delicious served with chili sauce and crisp bacon.

Lima Beans &amp; Spaghetti En Casserole

1 medium onion finely cut
4 strips bacon, finely cut
2 cups cooked dried lima beans, drained
2 cups cooked spaghetti
1 can tomato soup
1 teaspoon salt
dash pepper
dash cayenne
1/4 cup mayonnaise
1/2 cup grated cheese
bread crumbs
Cook the onion and bacon together slowly for 5 minutes. Drain off excess fat. Add the beans, spaghetti and soup and cook 5 minutes. Add the seasonings and mayonnaise. Blend until thoroughly mixed. Place in a greased casserole and cover with grated cheese and bread crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven for 12 minutes.

Baked Carrots and Turnips

A delicious way to serve autumn vegetables is to bake two of them such as carrots and turnips side by side in the same dish. Shred raw carrots coarsely and pile them in half of the casserole. Repeat with the turnips. Add no water but sprinkle on salt and pepper and dot with butter. A dash of ginger brings a new flavor to the carrots and a sprinkling of cinnamon and sugar on the turnips completes an unusual and savory dish. Cook until tender.

Black Bean Pot

Use 2 quarts of spotted beans. Soak overnight in salted water. Then place in cast-iron roasting pot, first lining the receptacle with 3/4 pound salt pork cut in cubes. Cover with water consisting of half water and half cooking claret. A sachet of aromatic herbs such as marjoram, thyme, laurel leaves, cloves and whole black pepper may be added and the pot placed in the oven for slow baking. As the liquid is absorbed by the beans add a little dry white wine which is salted for cooking purposes. When the beans are cooked add a water glass of strong coffee which is essential to cut the fatty matter. Before serving add two teaspoons dry mustard, 2 tablespoons brown sugar. Bake about 6 hours.

Spanish Squash

1 squash
1 medium-size chopped onion
2 tablespoons fat
1 teaspoon salt
1 few grains pepper
1 teaspoon sugar
2 cups cooked or canned tomatoes
1 cup grated cheese
1/2 cup buttered crumbs

Cut squash in cubes, remove seeds. Steam until almost tender, drain well. Cook onion in fat till a delicate brown. Add salt, pepper, sugar, and tomatoes. Put a layer of squash in a casserole, then a layer of tomato mixture and sprinkle with cheese. Continue until all ingredients are used. Cover top with buttered crumbs. Bake in a hot oven about 20 minutes or until thoroughly heated.

Squash Fritters

1 cup grated squash
1/2 teaspoon grated onion
1/2 teaspoon salt
few grains pepper

1 teaspoon sugar
3 tablespoons flour
1 egg
1 teaspoon melted fat or oil
Combine squash, onion, salt, pepper, sugar and flour. Mix well. Add beaten egg and fat or oil. Drop by spoonfuls on a greased griddle. Fry on both sides until a delicate brown.

SCHOOL DAYS WHICH ARE NOW HERE BRING NEED FOR LUNCHES

By Miss Edna Stephany

Home Economics Representative
Every child needs an adequate school lunch in order to keep the health acquired during the summer from good food, sunshine, fresh air, and exercise.

It is best to consider the child's lunch in relation to his food needs for the entire day. A warm nutritious breakfast and a substantial lunch are necessary to provide materials for growth and energy. The evening meal, which should have at least one hot dish, will do its share in supplementing important food elements which may be lacking in the other meals.

The health of the school child tends to wane or improve, according to the quality of his noon lunch. Some children bring insufficient food; others bring sufficient but lack the type needed; still others may bring satisfactory lunches but neglect to eat what they bring.

Types of food needed by the child are: First, food for growth, like milk, eggs and meat. Second, foods that supply the child with energy for his many activities as cereals and butter; and third, foods that protect and regulate as fruits and vegetables.

A grade A lunch box contains milk, a substantial food, usually sandwiches with fillings of egg, meat, or cheese; a juicy fruit or vegetable and a simple dessert or sweet.

When possible it is ideal to have a hot dish at noon. This may be in the form of a soup, stew, or vegetable chowder, which can be carried in a thermos bottle or in a pint jar and reheated at school. Some schools furnish a hot dish at noon and this is a boon to the child.

One reason why some children may not enjoy and may not eat sufficient food from their school lunch pails is the manner in which the box is prepared. Regardless of the type of lunch box used, it will present an attractive appearance if lined with a white paper napkin or towel and if each article is wrapped separately in waxed paper.

Pack the box so that foods do not shake about. The standard equipment, such as knife, fork, spoon and drinking cup, should always be present. White paper napkins, one to spread on the desk for a cover and one for the child to use are an aid to a neat looking box or a crepe cloth and napkin with fringed edges may be used. These require no ironing and can easily be kept fresh and clean. Covered containers for moist foods are necessary or paper cups with covers may be used and then discarded.

YARDLEY

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Lovett entertained a number of their friends at a party on Labor Day at their home. Covers were laid for Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Palmer, Langhorne; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Taylor, Mrs. Anna Knight, Newtown; Mr. Knight, Philadelphia; Mrs. Lillian Knight, Miss Alice Knight, Trenton, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Parsons, Atlantic City, N. Locate a little English boy to depict the heart-stirring story of a beloved Dickens character!

Search the world for the one man who knows better than all others how people lived in Elizabethan days — what they wore, what they ate, the manner of their dress and their talk!

Reconstruct an historic palace—re-create an historic battle—build a volcano! Erect a city and set it aflame! Loose a flood that will wash whole villages away!

It is you who order these things — and they are done. And whether you applaud with your hands or your heart at the conclusion of a motion picture, your approval echoes in the lives of unseen thousands who have collaborated in its making.

It is for your entertainment that an army of the world's greatest talents is ever on the march, forging ahead to open new vistas for your delight — adding brilliant new recruits from all the arts every day in the year.

Spare nothing, says Hollywood, to make the motion picture theatre the happy haven it is, the place to which millions may confidently come for freedom from boredom and care... for suspense that makes the pulse beat faster... for romance that warms the heart... for hearty laughter and eye-filling beauty.

The unseen hands applaud — and we who make motion pictures hear the echo. It guides us, inspires us, challenges us to fresh endeavors to make the movies better and better.

Now — on the eve of the Golden Jubilee of motion pictures — there is ready for you a remarkable array of new productions — the finest, we feel, that have ever been presented in a single season. On them we have lavished all our skill, all our experience, all our resources.

Here are pictures to charm and to thrill — pictures to amaze and amuse — pictures destined to weave their magic about the hearts and the minds of millions of people — to lighten their labor and brighten their lives, to lift them out of the drab, workaday world into a new world of wonder — timeless and boundless.

See them — give yourself up to their spell — relax and let them work their magic. They are a tonic for your mind and your heart — they are good for what ails you.

Watch for these new season's pictures at your favorite theatre!

ON SCREENS IN BRISTOL

BRISTOL

How a girl imperils her life and all her hopes of freedom and happiness in a desperate effort to keep from ruining the career of the man she loves, forms the powerful theme of "Condemned Women," in which Sally Eilers, Louis

Edward and Anne Shirley have principal roles, showing at the Bristol Theatre.

Most of the absorbing action of the story is laid within the grim walls of a women's penitentiary, to which Miss Eilers is sent to serve a three-year sentence, and where Hayward, a young psychiatrist, is assigned to study the inmates. Their meetings develop into romance. Told by the sympathetic warden that a marriage would wreck Hayward's future, Miss Eilers accepts an important part in a daring escape plot as the only way to disillusion him.

The exciting consequences and the drama of the ingeniously-planned escape make "Condemned Women" a notable piece of screen entertainment, replete with tense action and breathless suspense. Ann Shirley shares leading honors with the two principals as a girl who is serving a sentence for embezzlement to protect her fiancé, the real thief; and the supporting cast includes George Irving, Lee Patrick, Richard Bond, Esther Dale and Leona Roberts. Lew Landers directed "Condemned Women," a production by Robert Sisk for RKO Radio.

GRAND

"The Amazing Doctor Clitterhouse," starring Edward G. Robinson, adapted from the Barre Lyndon stage play which scored a great hit both in New York and London, will be the next feature attraction at the Grand Theatre starting today.

The bizarre, exciting and highly amusing story centers absorbingly around Dr. Clitterhouse, Robinson's greatest screen role. He is a highly respected neurological surgeon whose interest in the mental and physical reactions of criminals at the moments when they are engaged in their illegal activities becomes an obsession—seemingly a scientific obsession.

He decides that the best way to settle the questions in his mind is to use himself as his own guinea pig, and he embarks on a career of ruthless crime, for the purpose—so he eventually explains—of studying his own reactions and those of the criminals with whom he is thrown into contact.

Launched on his criminal career, Dr. Clitterhouse makes the acquaintance of a "fence," played by Claire Trevor, and soon, by his superior shrewdness and cunning, establishes himself as the leader of the gang of robbers, formerly headed by Humphrey Bogart. The comic implications here—the highly cultured doctor fraternizing with the rowdy gangsters—are played to the hilt.

In the course of the robbery of a big fur warehouse, the deposed leader locks Dr. Clitterhouse in a refrigerated vault, expecting that will be the end of his rival, but the doctor is saved from the vault. When next the two meet, the doctor adds murder to his record by slipping a dose of poison into a glass of liquor which the gangster drinks.

EASTBURN SISTER AND BROTHER WIN SWIMMING TITLES

Favorites Easily Take Honors At Chapman Pool, Doylestown

HONORS IN DIVING

Sonia Slotter and Bob Bitzer Prove To Be The Best Divers

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 8.—"Sis" (Elizabeth) Eastburn, and her brother, John Eastburn, easily took the swimming honors when the 12th annual junior-midget swimming championships were held at the Chapman Memorial pool, Saturday. Twenty-five took part.

The diving honors went to Miss Sonia Slotter and "Bob" Bitzer.

Miss Eastburn took the midget girls' title for the fourth straight year, and John won the junior boys' title for the second successive year.

A coveted trophy was won by Billy Abel, of Warrington. This was the "Progress Trophy" awarded annually to the boy or girl who made the most outstanding progress during the summer. Bill was unable to swim in June, but he improved so rapidly that he became eligible to become a member of the advanced swimming class and Saturday took a dive off the high board and swam to the shallow end of the pool. He now swims the crawl, back and breast strokes.

During the course of the meet a cablegram from Paris from the sponsors of the meet, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Mercer, of "Aldie," Doylestown, was received and read.

This year the attendance trophy, awarded annually to the boy or girl attending lessons the greatest number of times was won by Jimmy Groman, who attended 47 out of 49 lessons.

Judges of Saturday's meet included A. A. Beshel, W. Fred Orth, Joseph J. Conroy, Dick Harris, Ramsay McKinnsey, Jr. The score-keeper was William F. Greenawalt and the timer was A. A. Beshel.

Miss Eastburn annexed 25 points during the meet, winning every event in which she competed including the 50-yard free style, 50-yard breast stroke, 50-yard back stroke, 100-yard free style and diving. Her nearest competitor in point-scoring was Miss Jean Carlen with a total of 18 points and Miss Jean Bellerby with 16 points in the midget girls' class.

In the junior girls' class, Miss Keller and Miss Slotter tied with 20 points apiece, beating out Miss Nan Northington with 18 points.

In the midget boys' class, Billy Kane scored a total of 20 points beating out Jimmy Moore with 17 points. In the junior boys' class, John Eastburn scored 23 points and Allen Moore 20 points.

The summaries:

BOWLERS OPEN THE LEAGUE SEASON HERE

The Bristol Bowling Association opened the season last night with two matches in the American League.

Bohm & Haus team took four points from Asco in this match. The highlight was the bowling of the veteran, George Bailey, who rolled only two games, but in the second game he rolled one-third of a perfect score—"an even 100."

In the other match the Independent All-Stars won three of the four points from C. A. C.

"They were informed by the Premier that orders had been issued for an inquiry to be opened immediately, and that the Minister of Justice already had the matter in hand.

"The delegates were told that there would be a strict investigation and that the guilty would be punished and that other measures would be taken with a view to preventing any recurrence of the incidents.

"The Sudeten delegates replied they would reconsider the situation in the light of the Premier's declaration."

Despite hopes that the Sudetens would agree to continue the peace discussions, based on the latest concessions offered by the Government, the crisis remained at a dangerous stage as the result of rapid-fire, overnight developments.

The British mediation mission, headed by Viscount Runciman, made a desperate effort to prevent a complete collapse of the Czech-Sudeten discussions, which earlier had appeared on the verge of progressing smoothly following acceptance of Prague's "final" offer by the Sudetens as a basis for continued talks.

One member of the British mission, Major Sutton Pratt, was sent to Maehrich-Ostrau to look into the reported disorders there along with the Czech Government and Sudeten investigators.

Viscount Runciman and his aides faced mounting difficulties, however, when the Sudetens broadcast new charges that Czech authorities at Maehrich-Ostrau removed 25 Sudeten prisoners from the town so that they could not talk to Major Pratt.

"Czech authorities are removing unwelcome witnesses," Sudeten leaders openly charged.
